Whoop-It-Up Communications Day

From Sarah Scheetz

On January 12th, the Whoop-It-Up 4-H Multi Club had their annual communications day. We thank the following people for being speech judges: Mary Jablonski, Darlene MacPherson, Mandy Peck, and the following people for being presentation judges: Sara Maskiewicz, Eileen McMann, and Melissa Styba. First place for junior speeches was Mal Williams. First place for junior presentations was Karl Miller. First Place for Intermediate speeches was Luuk Scholten. First place for intermediate presentations was Stephanie Sanders and Sarah Scheetz. First place for senior speeches was Megan Gitzel. First place for senior presentations was Davin Linder. We wish all of our members who are moving on to Districts good luck! Thank you to AltaLink for their continued support of the 4-H communications programs.

Community Events Survey

The Thorsby community hosts varied events throughout the year. With a few minutes of your time, we hope that you will share how you think we're doing as a community providing these events, the locations we choose, and preferences for the advertising/notification of events. We'd also appreciate your input on what, if anything, you might like to see changed. You can get the survey on our website www.thorsby.ca or on our Facebook page, Town of Thorsby, Alberta or you can pick up a paper copy at the Town Office.

We want to take some of the risk out of farming.

There's no business like farming. That's why, when it comes to insuring your property, your liability and your income, it pays to deal with the experts. Our friends at Wawanesa are the largest farm insurers in all of Canada. They've been in the business a very long time, and they understand the needs of farmers. We will gladly visit your farm to discuss your needs.

Talk to us about tailoring a package for your farm insurance needs. We're also here to help you with home, automobile, tenant/condominium, home business, commercial, rental property insurance and more.

Straight Out of Thorsby

From the County of Leduc, from Alberta and Canada, from Singapore to the U.K., from Australia to Holland, from the USA to Panama, Thorsby graduates are making a difference. This is the twelfth installment in a series of profiles which indicate what a small school and community can produce.

The people who conduct the interviews are Audrey Brosseau and John Elson. If you have suggestions please contact John at 780-789-3822 or Audrey at 780-886-0658.

RYAN MASON - Organic Farmer

Farming was not always a passion of mine. I grew up on a broiler breeder chicken farm 18 km south of Thorsby. On the farm I learned to love the freedom that land provides us, but I despised gardening. When I was younger, gardening was a chore, taking me away from video games, the lake, or playing sports. So here is a little bit about how I came to love gardening and started an organic market garden back in the Thorsby area where I started out.

Growing up in Thorsby was a blessing. While there may not have been every activity or skill level of the things I loved, there certainly was opportunity. I got involved with everything I could including hockey, soccer, basketball, volleyball, roller blading, running, triathlon, band (french horn) and the Student's Union. I attended school in Thorsby from kindergarten to grade 12, and graduated from Thorsby High School in 2005 as co-valedictorian of a class of 22 students.

After high school I went to the Augustana Campus of the University of Alberta in Camrose to study Global and Development studies, politics and sociology. It was at Augustana where I renewed my love for agriculture. There I focused most of my courses on community development and travel, many of which integrated environmental or food system aspects. Augustana allowed me to travel to southern France (history and culture course), New York (model United Nations), rural Puebla in Mexico, Ryley Alberta, and Santiago de Cuba. Every travel abroad experience allowed me to learn more about myself and countless new ways of doing things. The Mexico trip was the most impactful as I lived and worked on a small farm with 5 generations of female farmers. My farm experience in Mexico showed me alternative and intensive ways of doing agriculture that inspired me later in life to start my farm. During the rest of my time at Augustana I worked for residence life, as a research assistant, and did about half a dozen community placements related to course work on things like affordable housing and environmental conservation.

After receiving my Bachelor's Degree at Augustana (with Distinction), I worked for the university facilitating outdoor education, and international and community service learning programs. This job included creating videos, event organizing and research on place-based learning. During these extra two years in Camrose, I married my wife Brittany who I met at Augustana. Shortly after our wedding we relocated to Rouyn-Noranda, Quebec to teach English in a Francophone school through the My Odyssey Program. After a year of learning French, ice fishing and playing l'hockey we moved back to Edmonton to re-enroll in the University of Alberta.

This time I did a Master's of Science in Environmental Sociology through the faculty of Agriculture, Life and Environmental Sciences (ALES). The time in this program allowed me to jumpstart my current farm. My research for my masters was related to agriculture as I studied how gender influences food insecurity in rural Tanzania. I was paired with a project looking at increasing food availability and nutrition in one of the most at risk locations in the world.

I travelled to Dodoma, Tanzania for 3.5 months to help with a dairy goat, sweet potato and cassava project and was privileged to work with small scale farms throughout the region. Even in one of the poorest regions of the world, there were innovation and alternative forms of agriculture that invigorated my passion for growing food. While their agriculture was far from perfect, it inspired me to see what more we could do here. Upon arriving back in Canada I began an urban farm in Edmonton with a classmate from my Master's program, and named it Reclaim Urban Farm.

Reclaim Urban Farm was a multi-locational farm that used vacant lots, front yards and backyards in Edmonton to grow vegetables for sale at Farmers Markets, restaurants and retailers. The farm worked with local landowners to grow vegetables using sustainable low impact methods. We even biked all of our product and machinery around Whyte Avenue! In addition to outdoor market gardening, Reclaim Urban Farm used part of a warehouse space as an indoor vertical garden to grow herbs and microgreens year round. Reclaim Urban Farm operated from a scale of 1/4 acre and a bedroom grow-op in 2014 to 1 acre and a 300 sq ft warehouse grow space in 2017. Our little farm had a big impact as it was featured in dozens of news pieces including CBC Radio and the front page of the Edmonton Journal. We also collaborated with the City of Edmonton to craft urban agriculture guidelines for future growers. In 2016 my business partner and I received the University of Alberta Alumni Innovation Award for our work in urban agriculture. After frustrations with bureaucracy, buying out my business partner, and yearning of home, my wife and I moved back to the family farm south of Thorsby in May of 2018. We changed the name of the farm to Reclaim Organics and are now growing 3000 sq ft indoors and 5.5 acres outdoors with lots of space to scale up if needed. Last year, we sold our vegetables to 45-60 restaurants as well as 4 retailers and at two Farmers Markets in Edmonton every week. We also had 7 full time summer staff and are excited to start offering more tours and educational activities on our Thorsby farm.

In the future we look forward to adding agro-tourism, permaculture, bees and greenhouses. After growing up pulling chickweed on this farm for 18 years, I am still pulling chickweed, but now I am selling it to fancy restaurants at a premium. Come visit us sometime soon and taste it yourself.

“Embracing Pathways to Healing”

Is the human body meant to be wounded?
What does it mean to heal body,
mind, heart and soul?
What pathways do I embrace?

The Faith Community of Thorsby will be hosting a seven week, free of charge study and interaction and we welcome the community to “Embracing Pathways to Healing”.

Come and see what we have to offer on our opening evening Wednesday, Feb.27th, at 6:15 pm at St. Matthew’s Lutheran Church. We begin with a soup supper, followed by an introduction to the study and an outline of the next 6 Wednesdays. This evening will allow you to discover the series topics, learn about presenters, and then visit and socialize with other attendees. The topics will be far reaching and our presenters will be from our local region along with some out of the area.

Previous years sessions have included, “Question Everything”, “Especially yours”, “Have we talked lately” and “The Mysteries of Our Faith”. These have been well attended and highly evaluated. Common remarks by course takers are that they have been openly accepting, soul searching, fun loving, friendship building, no pressure and, in many cases, a positive life changing experience.

Each week we will offer a soup supper at 6:15 pm and will begin our study punctually at 7:00 pm. Study time will include music, teaching, small group and large group discussion. We will conclude with fellowship time.

We extend a warm invitation to anyone curious about studying in a large group setting.

Come and explore these topics with us.

If you have any questions please contact: Bob Krueger @ 780-789-2285

Sponsored and supported by New Life Christian Fellowship, Our Lady of Victory Catholic Parish, St. Matthew’s Lutheran and members of other faith communities.

University of Alberta Senate Applications Open

From Amissa Jablonski

Alberta residents have a chance to act as a voice for their community in post-secondary education, by serving with the University of Alberta Senate.

The Senate, which acts as a link between the U of A and communities across the province is seeking applications for volunteer members, due March 1, 2019.

“Our Senate is one of the most important ways the university connects with people beyond campus. Members bring important perspective to the U of A about the needs and opportunities that exist in their communities” said Derek Roy-Brenneis, Executive Officer to the Senate.

Senators act as ambassadors and advocates for the University by building awareness of the value of post-secondary education, connecting U of A people and programs with community representatives and resources.

Senate members, volunteer 50 to 100 hours per year and serve three-year terms. During their service, they learn about the U of A, attend plenary session meetings four times a year, serve on committees, and attend ceremonial events such as Convocation.

Senators do not need a university degree nor do they have to be a U of A Alumni.

“We are looking for people who are good communicators, who ask great questions, who are good storytellers, and good connectors in putting people and ideas together. We want them to have a sense of why a place like the U of A is important.”

Application forms are available on the Senate website at www.senate.ualberta.ca. Click the green ‘Learn About Becoming a Senator’ button or call 780-492-2268.

Health Benefits of Kindness – February is Heart Month.

Did you know that numerous scientific studies show that acts of kindness result in significant health benefits, both physical and mental? Here are some key points:

- Helping contributes to the maintenance of good health, and it can diminish the effect of diseases and disorders, serious and minor, psychological and physical.
- A rush of euphoria, followed by a longer period of calm, after performing a kind act is often referred to as a “helper’s high,” involving physical sensations and the release of the body’s natural painkillers, the endorphins. This initial rush is then followed by a longer-lasting period of improved emotional well-being.
- Stress-related health problems improve after performing kind acts. Helping reverses feelings of depression, supplies social contact, and decreases feelings of hostility and isolation that can cause stress, overeating, ulcers, etc. A drop in stress may, for some people, decrease the constriction within the lungs that leads to asthma attacks.
- Helping can enhance our feelings of joyfulness, emotional resilience, and vigor, and can reduce the unhealthy sense of isolation.
- A decrease in both the intensity and the awareness of physical pain can occur.
- The incidence of attitudes, such as chronic hostility, that negatively arouse and damage the body is reduced.
- The health benefits and sense of well-being return for hours or even days whenever the helping act is remembered.
- An increased sense of self-worth, greater happiness, and optimism, as well as a decrease in feelings of helplessness and depression, is achieved.
- Once we establish an “affiliate connection” with someone - a relationship of friendship, love, or some sort of positive bonding - we feel emotions that can strengthen the immune system.
- Adopting an altruistic lifestyle is a critical component of mental health.
- The practice of caring for strangers translates to immense immune and healing benefits.
