

THE WARBURG BUGLE

If You Offer It, They Will Come

And come they did to another successful craft night that was put on by the Warburg Alliance Church.

On November 16, 14 people attended a fun Wreath Making Class. Traditional & burlap wreaths were made. They all turned out beautifully and the creativity was wonderful! Special thanks to Instructor Meagan Lewis who came out from Leduc Florists.

Watch for monthly activities planned at the Church beginning again in January.

Library Chatter

From Gail O'Neil

The Staff and Board spent some time at the Warburg Christmas Bazaar selling tickets for the Library Christmas draw, thank you to everyone who has purchased tickets, good luck and thanks for supporting Library programs and patron memberships (these are still free)! There is still plenty of time to purchase tickets, the draw date is December 19 at Noon. Prizes are a handmade Quilt and a wreath with gift cards and scratch tickets. Tickets are $2 each or 3 for $5.

New Memberships: 1 trappac card, 1 library tote filled with library and Village of Warburg information to help residents that are new to the area, the purchase of 3 draw tickets for $5 helps with the costs of these items.

The Warburg Legion Branch No. 205 Time To Wind Down From Deb Mellafont

We would like to make an honorable mention to the Village of Warburg, the Curling Club and the Pioneer Agricultural Society for the use of the Pioneer Agricultural Center (also known as the Community Hall). Thank you!

This week we wound up our Poppy Campaign for 2019 and there is no better way then to announce our winners for the Poppy and Literary component for this year. We can honestly say there are a lot of young people in the Breton, Warburg and Thorsby area that speak from their hearts and have an exceptional artistic quality about them. We sure are proud of all of you!

We consider all entries as winners, as their participation in any of our Poppy and Remembrance Day campaign is of the utmost importance in recognizing the talents of our youth today. Thanks to all the teachers and parents who helped these young people attend services, be a part of the services, and be a part of the Poster and Literary component. Your help is greatly appreciated and we are honoured that you took the time to introduce this to the students.

3 reasons why chasing big returns is a losing race

BY IG WEALTH MANAGEMENT / SEPTEMBER 2019

Over time, stock markets may be more predictable than you think. A long-term strategy can be more effective than trying to time the markets and chasing big, one-time returns.

You hear about winners all the time. They're the people who got in at the right time and made a lot of money by buying the right stocks or investing in the right sector. It's natural to want to get in on the action. Occasional success may lead you to believe that one can consistently time the market. But is it worth it to try?

3 reasons to avoid market timing:

1. Long-term investors benefit from not jumping in and out of the market.

No matter what increments of time are examined, - days, weeks, or years – stock markets tend to go up roughly two-thirds of the time. And that's based on data going back over 60 years. No one knows when a crash may occur or a particular stock will tank. But for an individual with a reasonably long investment horizon, this trend adds up to predictability. Predictability generates the confidence needed to stay invested and committed to a plan instead of reacting to hype or emotion.

2. Over the short term, it's anybody's guess

The stock market gives little or no warning when it tumbles. Individual stocks can take a dive based on economic events or bad press. Geographic sectors can drop based on speculation about political events. While these things can't be timed with any accuracy, a good financial plan, that is based on your time horizon and matched to your risk tolerance, provides a balanced approach to investing and can help you ride out the turbulence with confidence.

3. Timing requires selling

Timing the market means buying low and selling high. Investments have to be sold in order to realize any gains. When you sell, your money will be out of the market, sitting on the sidelines. During the time you are not invested, you could miss out on returns that could have been predicted by simply staying invested.

When it comes to timing, time itself is your best ally. Invest for the long term, based on your goals, as part of a complete financial plan that leaves you feeling confident in any market.
