MLA Report

From the Office of MLA Mark Smith

February 4, 2020 - This last week Minister Shandro announced a highly anticipated and welcome review of Alberta's Healthcare System. The report, conducted by Ernst & Young LLP (EY), will look to maintain current healthcare spending while searching for greater efficiencies and more effective services for Albertans.

The review is the first in 10 years, since Alberta Health Services was formed. The report contains 57 recommendations and 72 savings opportunities to improve the quality and long-term sustainability of health services.

"The AHS review is a key commitment to Albertans, and I'm very excited about moving forward with implementation. Every dollar we save will be put right back into the health system to deliver on our promise to improve access and make the system work better for patients. It's about freeing up administrative resources so we can spend more directly on Albertans' health care."

Tyler Shandro, Minister of Health

The recommendations address four key areas: people, clinical services, non-clinical services and governance. The government accepts the report, with two important exceptions: there will be no hospital closures or consolidation of urban trauma centres.

Internal savings will allow more money to be directed to patients and front-line care, and will help free up funds for more surgeries while diminishing wait times. The report identifies a range of long-term savings initiatives with the potential to save between $1.5 billion to $1.9 billion annually.

Stakeholder input into the review process far exceeded any similar projects that Ernst & Young LLP (EY) has conducted across Canada. Staff engagement included feedback from about 1,200 physicians, 27,000 front-line staff and 4,200 AHS leaders.

Over the next 100 days, AHS will engage staff and clinical leaders as it develops a long-term implementation plan. The successful completion of this AHS review will fulfill an important platform committed to cut administrative costs while increasing patient care.

I am also excited to tell you about an incredible opportunity to honour and recognize those who help keep our communities safe. The Alberta Community Justice Awards acknowledge the people and organizations involved with crime prevention and community safety initiatives. This includes youth justice, restorative justice and other community-based justice efforts that improve safety and well-being.

Nominations close February 28 and the 29th Annual Alberta Community Justice Awards ceremony will take place in Edmonton in June.

Finally, in regards to our oil and gas sector, we have been receiving some great news and even better numbers. Since being elected, our government has focused on attracting investment and sending a strong message that Alberta is open for business.

I am happy to report that the Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers expects total investment in oil and gas will be $37 billion this year – up $2 billion from $35.1 billion in 2019. This investment will support approximately 8,100 jobs here in Alberta and 3,700 jobs in the rest of Canada. This is in addition to the 533,000 jobs that Alberta's energy industry provides across the country.

*It broke our hearts to lose you,
but you did not go alone.
A part of us went with you,
the day God took you home.
If tears could build a stairway,
and heartaches make a lane,
we'd walk our way to heaven,
and bring you back again.
In life we loved you dearly,
in death we love you still,
in our hearts you hold a place
no one could ever fill.*

*Forever In Our Hearts,
Mom, Dad, Tanner,
Family and Friends*

Straight Out of Thorsby

From the County of Leduc, from Alberta and Canada, from Singapore to the U.K., from Australia to Holland, from the USA to Panama, Thorsby graduates are making a difference. This is the 52nd installment in a series of profiles which indicate what a small school and community can produce.

The people who conduct the interviews are Audrey Brosseau and John Elson. If you have suggestions please contact John at 780-789-3822 or Audrey at 780-886-0658.

RON ZINGEL Class of '71 (Part 2 of 2)

After graduating from THS, I went to the University of Alberta where I studied Computer Science. I graduated in the spring of 1975 with an Honors B.Sc. (First Class) in Computer Science. In June 1975, I moved to Calgary and started working with Amoco Canada Petroleum Company (I had interviewed with Amoco in January of that year during the campus recruiting season).

Computing was quite different in the mid-70's. My initial training at Amoco included working in the operations area and the IBM 360 mainframe computer and writing programs in languages like IBM assembler, Fortran, and Cobol. Our coding sheets would be sent to the keypunch group, where the programs were converted onto punch cards. We'd then give the card decks to the operations group, who would load the cards into the mainframe, and we'd wait for the output. Since our programs were just training exercises, they received a much lower priority than production jobs. Sometimes it took a week to get the printed output, so you hoped you didn't make any silly mistakes!

After my training was complete, I was assigned to the field automation area. Our small group supported Interdata minicomputers that monitored (and provided rudimentary control) of production operations in places like Swan Hills, Crossfield, and Drayton Valley. The machines themselves were anything but mini, with the machines and the associated radio telemetry devices taking up four or five cabinets along the wall of an air-conditioned computer room. However, they were VERY primitive: they had 56 kilobytes of main memory, 256 kilobytes of magnetic drum storage, paper tape for input and output, and dip switches on the control panel if you had to restart the machine after a serious failure. Programs were written in Interdata assembler language, and the limited storage meant we'd regularly review our programs and declare it a successful day if we found a way to rewrite them to save a few bytes. During that time, Amoco started an oil sands pilot project at Gregoire Lake, just south of Fort McMurray. I wrote an interesting program that controlled the movement of temperature probes up and down observation wells. Unfortunately, the project, which involved heating the formation through stimulation wells so the oil and sand could be produced through production wells, was ahead of its time and was abandoned. With today's directional drilling technology and other innovations, SAGD (steam assisted gravity drainage) projects provide the vast majority of the oil produced from the oil sands.

After my next assignment, supporting an economics evaluation application, I moved into supervisory roles in both application development and infrastructure support. Highlights included:

- Supporting the development of a suite of NGL marketing applications that automated the entire NGL value chain from production through accounting. The natural gas liquids business (which includes ethane, butane, and propane) is a fascinating business that includes transporting NGLs from Alberta to the Sarnia area in Ontario in batches in oil pipelines, storing the liquids in underground salt caverns, and using them in the petrochemical industry, heating, and crop drying.
- Providing infrastructure support through two mergers (Amoco/Dome and Amoco/BP) and several outsourcing initiatives.
- Ensuring infrastructure hardware and software was Y2K compliant, and being on call the night of December 31, 1999 to ensure no issues occurred when the clock ticked into the new millennium. We had a jump on it since we could follow how company operations in locations like Australia and the Middle East fared with the change.
- Supporting business disposition activities such as the sale of the Rangeland Pipeline System and the Edmonton Ethane Extraction Plant, as well as the two major dispositions that occurred in Canada in the aftermath of the Deepwater Horizon disaster (the NGL business was sold to Plains Midstream and the production business was sold to Apache Canada). It's a significant challenge converting PCs, servers, and telecom networks from one company to another overnight.
- An assignment as the Global Service Desk Manager, providing oversight to externally sourced service desks (IBM was the major provider) who supported 60,000 BP users in the Americas and Europe.
- A rotation at one of the operations centers (in Mobile Alabama) set up to oversee cleanup operations in the Gulf of Mexico following the Deepwater Horizon incident. We ensured the operations center people (700 or so during peak hours) had all the computer support they needed. It was amazing to see people from BP, the US Coast Guard, NOAA, and various gulf state and federal organizations come together almost overnight and work together to coordinate clean-up activities.

- Ensuring our computing infrastructure in the Calgary BP Centre was successfully remotely shut down when the 2013 Calgary flood occurred and restarted remotely when the waters receded. Calgary office staff worked from their homes for a significant period of time until it was safe to get back to the office.

After the sale of such a large part of the Canadian business following the Deepwater Horizon incident, it was determined that the infrastructure support I was doing could be handled by a person in another BP location. This resulted in my retirement on March 31, 2015, just two months short of forty years with Amoco/BP. It was quite a ride! I met a lot of great people from around the world and got a chance to visit locations like Toronto, Chicago, Houston, Anchorage, London (England), Greenock (Scotland), Lisbon, and Bangalore (India).

I kept active in sports while I was working, with golf and fastball during the summer and curling in the winter. It was through curling that in 1987 I met my future wife. One of the guys I curled with arranged a birthday party for his girlfriend Linda at a restaurant in downtown Calgary. Linda was a corporate sales rep for Air Canada and one of her clients was Janice Marshall, the travel supervisor at Petro Canada. Linda introduced me to Janice that night and, as they say, the rest is history! Janice and I were married in May 1989. Janice is a native Calgarian who worked in wholesale and retail travel before joining Petro Canada to manage its corporate travel. We have a daughter Vanessa, born in 1991, and a son Reid, born in 1993. Vanessa is engaged, and Reid is still single. Vanessa has a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Creative Writing from UBC and is working on a second book. She also attended Bow Valley College and has worked as a Pharmacy Technician. Reid graduated from SAIT with a diploma in Broadcast Systems Information Technology, but could not find employment in the field following graduation so he worked at a golf course in New Zealand for a year and travelled throughout Southeast Asia. He returned home, worked for a year, and then travelled through Europe for a couple of months. He worked on a farm outside of Tromsø Norway before returning to Calgary last October. Janice and I have been fortunate to travel quite a bit since I've retired, and we both work at staying fit so we can continue to enjoy a healthy retirement for as long as we can.

As I look back over my 66 years, there are a few pieces of advice I can offer young people today:

- No matter what task you're given, do your best. I'm confident it helped me enjoy such a long and successful career. Following one of the many restructurings we went through, my manager referred to me as one of his rocks, someone he could depend on regardless of what was needed.
- Control what you can control, influence what you can influence, and try not to worry about the rest. Spending time fretting about things you cannot control can eat you alive.
- Life will throw you curve balls from time to time. Often the only thing you can control is how you respond to them. Stay positive instead of being negative or angry.
- Don't take your health for granted. Eat well, exercise regularly, and manage your stress. The goal is to make the quality of life equal to the quantity of life.
- Give back. Volunteering not only helps your community, but it is extremely satisfying and rewarding to you personally. As I scanned through some of the back-issues of the Thorsby Target, I noticed the names of a lot of people who were involved in community activities when I was in school, and who are still volunteering. It's that kind of spirit that makes a community a community.

I still get back to the Thorsby area occasionally since Mom and Dad live in Leduc, as does one of my brothers. My cousin Darryl Hostyn still lives in Thorsby, and his brother Lorne has a cabin at Pigeon Lake on Sandholm Beach. We've used Lorne's cabin the past few years as the base for a golf weekend in June, and we usually go through Thorsby. It's nice to see the town is growing, and a trip down main street brings back lots of memories.

What is the Leduc Beaumont Devon Primary Care Network?

The Leduc Beaumont Devon Primary Care Network (LBD PCN) provides services for patients in the cities of Leduc and Beaumont, town of Devon and all communities in Leduc County. A group of 56 family physicians in 13 clinics along with additional healthcare professionals (nurses, dietitians, an exercise specialist, behavioural health consultants and mental health clinicians) work together to improve primary care for our patients. The LBD PCN offers support to our patients through the following services:

- Health promotion and disease prevention
- Diabetes management
- Weight management
- Nutrition concerns
- Exercise and activity support
- Mental health support
- Tobacco reduction and cessation
- Health education classes and workshops
- Senior care
- Specialty clinics
- Referral coordination
- After-hours clinics in Leduc and Beaumont

Primary Care Networks (PCNs) use a collaborative team approach to provide care for patients and to coordinate primary health care services provided by family physicians, Alberta Health Services and other health care professionals.

PCNs are a way to provide team support for family doctors by bringing teams of health professionals together; doctors, nurses, dietitians, social workers, mental health professionals, pharmacists, occupational and respiratory therapists and others. PCNs also manage 24-hour patient access to appropriate primary care services.

What are Primary Care Networks?

PCNs are a made-in-Alberta approach to improving access to and better coordination of care for patients across the province. In a PCN, a group of family doctors working with a multidisciplinary team and Alberta Health Services coordinate health services for patients. A PCN is not necessarily a bricks and mortar building – it is a network of doctors and other health providers such as nurses, dietitians, mental health professionals, therapists, pharmacists and others working together to provide primary health care to patients.

A PCN can be comprised of one clinic with many physicians and support staff, or several doctors in several clinics in a geographic area. Each network has the flexibility to develop programs and to provide services in a way that works locally to meet the specific needs of patients. This is done within the provincial Primary Care Initiative framework. The flexibility to develop local solutions to local health issues makes each PCN unique and encourages the PCN team to focus on the needs of the local patient population.

There are 41 PCNs operating throughout Alberta with more than 3800 family physicians and 1400 healthcare professionals are working in PCNs. Approximately 85% of Albertans receive care through a Primary Care Network.
